EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

1. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Mr. Chunhsi Andy Mu on 03 June 2011.

2. The application has been amended as follows:

In the Claims

i) Replace lines 11-17 of claim 1 with the following:

storing displayable content information describing a non-identified portion of the multimedia presentation not included in the plurality of desired portions, wherein content of the non-identified portion is related content of at least one of the plurality of desired portions; and presenting, of the multimedia presentation, only the plurality of desired portions of the multimedia presentation ~~along with the displayable content information stored in the annotation file~~ without presenting any other portion of the multimedia presentation including the intervening portion, wherein the second desired portion is displayed automatically after the first desired portion without user interaction; and presenting the displayable content information with at least one of the plurality of desired portion.

ii) Replace lines 5-10 of claim 6 with the following:

creating an annotation file for the event substantially simultaneously to said broadcasting, the annotation file storing a first pointer corresponding to a first desired portion of the plurality of desired portions, a second pointer corresponding to a second desired portion of the plurality of desired portions and displayable content information describing a non-identified portion of the broadcasted event not included in the plurality of desired portions, wherein the displayable content information is different from the broadcasted event and wherein content of the non-identified portion is related to content of at least one of the plurality of desired portions; and

iii) Replace lines 7-9 of claim 18 with the following:

displayable content information describing a non-identified portion of the multimedia presentation different from the first desired portion and different from the second desired portion, wherein the displayable content information is different from the multimedia presentation and wherein content of the non-identified portion is related to content of at least one of the first desired portion and the second desired portion;

Reasons for Allowability

3. Claims 1-7, 18 and 20 are allowed.
4. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: Prior art of record fails to teach the combination of claimed elements including selecting desired portions of a multimedia presentation; automatically creating an annotation file for the multimedia presentation having one or more pointers corresponding to the selected desired portions; storing the pointers in the annotation file; storing displayable content information describing portions of the multimedia presentation not included in the plurality of desired portions, wherein the displayable content information is related content of the desired portions; and presenting only the desired portions of the multimedia presentation along with displayable content information.

Zenoni (US 2002/0131511 A1) discloses a system and method for inserting indicators such as tags and markers in a video stream, wherein the tags and markers can be inserted automatically. Zenoni teaches that the tags and markers can be used to establish content information regarding video segments; tags for example can provide information regarding upcoming video segments; and markers may indicate the beginning/end of video segments. Zenoni explains that tags and markers can be used to either select or exclude video segments; for example of a viewer does not wish to view any nudity or offensive language, an alternative video source can be provided such as the weather or an advertising banner. Zenoni teaches that the video presentation can be output to a video recording device to record the video encoded with the tags and markers for later used. Zenoni fails to teach or suggest a multimedia presentation providing only the desired portions and displayable content information that describes non-identified portions not included in the desired portions of the multimedia presentation; wherein the content of the non-identified portions is related content of the desired portions.

Gupta et al (US 7,111,009 B1) discloses a system and method for generating a playlist using annotations. Gupta teaches that user-selected annotations are used to define a playlist of media segments corresponding to the annotations. Gupta teaches pointers to the annotation content which is stored in an annotation content store. Gupta teaches an annotation set list having a listing of various sets that correspond to target media streams; and only those sets for which an annotation has been created are displayed in the set list. Gupta explains that the annotations and/or corresponding media segments are presented to the user back to back with very little or not noticeable gap between different annotations and between different segments; thus, the presentation of the annotations and/or media segments is seamless. Gupta fails to teach or suggest a multimedia presentation providing only the desired portions and displayable content information that describes non-identified portions not included in the desired portions of the multimedia presentation; wherein the content of the non-identified portions is related content of the desired portions.

Conclusion
